Part A :

Panda Hug

We all love panda bears – they're big, cute and shy. But you shouldn't try to get too close, as one man in Beijing found out.

This man had too much to drink and went along to Beijing Zoo. When he came to the pandas, he decided he would climb in and say hello. He jumped down in with the pandas and hoped for a hug with one of the pandas. He found one panda and tried to shake its hand.

But instead, the panda took the man, turned him over and started to bite his leg ! The man was not happy and tried to bite the panda on the back. The panda's keepers saw what was happening and got the man out. Luckily the man was not hurt. It's a good thing he tried to hug a panda not a tiger !

Playing Violent Computer Games May Make You Stupid

A recent clinical test shows that playing violent computer games can make people stupid.

Dr. Jhou Yuan-hua, a psychiatrist in Taipei, recently did a test to see how violent video games affect people's brains. He looked at people's brains while they were playing games. He found something interesting. There was very little activity in the front part of the brain, called the frontal lobes. The frontal lobes are important parts of the brain. They help people remember things, make good decisions, and work together with others.

The test shows that people are not thinking very much when they are playing these games. They are just seeing and hearing what is happening on the screen. The brain cannot develop well if a person does not use it enough. Now Dr. Jhou Yuan-hua wants to do more tests. He wants to see what happens to people's brains after they play computer games for a long time.
